

Zoning objection

Attorneys differ on vote needed for city proposal

BY TRACI BONNEY
Judith Homes does not want a casino next to her property, and she makes no bones about it. Homes lives next to the Bay bridge site where Mardi Gras Casino plans to develop a dockside gambling facility. In past city meetings, she has voiced her objections to the development of the Bay bridge site, claiming a casino there would damage the historic character of the neighborhood and obstruct the view of the bay.

Last week, she filed a petition with the City Council objecting to a Planning and Zoning Commission recommendation for a zoning amendment that would establish dockside gaming only at that site within the Bay St. Louis city limits.

In a letter dated January 10, her attorney, David Crane of Mize, Blass, Lenoir & Laird in Gulfport, states that 20 percent or more of the property owners adjacent to and within 160 feet of the affected property object to the zoning amendment recommendation.

Crane wrote, "Accordingly, Mississippi Code Section 17-1-17 requires that in order for the proposed amendment to become effective, the council must approve the amendment by a two-thirds majority vote."

This means the five-member council would have to vote 4-1 in favor of the amendment to pass it.

However, city attorney John Scafide has a different view of the matter.

Scafide to remain involved in Bay zoning/gaming issues

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Bay St. Louis city attorney John Scafide will continue to provide legal advice for the city in certain gaming matters, according to Mayor Edward Favre.

Scafide was quoted by Favre in a March 7 issue of the Sea Coast Echo, saying "he would not be able to give counsel on gaming issues" due to his ownership of beachfront property which was considered as a possible gaming site.

The city council subsequently hired attorney Donald Rafferty as special counsel on gaming matters.

The question of Scafide's role arose recently at a Bay St. Louis

Senate committee passes lottery bill

BY TRACI BONNEY

A state lottery could be reality in the next year or two, if a bill approved Wednesday by a state Senate committee passes, according to Sen. Vic Frankiewicz.

Frankiewicz said the Senate Constitution Committee considered and approved on a 6-2 vote a bill permitting the state's voters to amend the constitution to allow lotteries. If the bill passes in its current form, a statewide vote will be held during the November general election.

"This is just the first step in the legislative process," he stated. "The bill could go to the floor of the Senate as early as tomorrow, then it would have to go to the House of Representatives." If passed, the bill opens the door for the voters to completely delete Section 98 of the Mississippi Constitution of 1890. Section 98 mandates a total prohibition on lotteries of any kind in the state.

Combining charges delays murder trial

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The women accused of murdering Frank Lombardo in their Bay St. Louis home on December 25, 1985 were granted a trial delay Tuesday after defense attorney Jim Rose of Gulfport proposed the combining of two separate charges into one trial.

Fran Frierson Lombardo, 43, and Mari Elizabeth Lombardo, 23, of California, were scheduled to go to trial Jan. 14 on charges that they shot Lombardo and then set fire to their home in an attempt to conceal the crime.

District Attorney Cono Caranna said combining the pending forgery charge on Lombardo's wife, and the murder charges on both the wife and adopted daughter will not effect the outcome of verdicts.

According to Assistant District Attorney Charles Wood, Fran Lombardo is also accused of forging her husband's name to a $100,000 life insurance policy application in 1984.

Wood said, a man named Winfield Strehle is also implicated in the forgery and he, too, is awaiting trial in a separate action.

Rose was granted an indefinite

County not against Bay Cove annexation

BY TRACI BONNEY

The board of supervisors does not plan to object to Bay St. Louis' annexation of Bay Cove.

At a Friday workshop, the supervisors all agreed to go on record at their next regular meeting as having no objection to the city's plan to annex about 600 acres (mostly water) which also contains Lambert Land Company's proposed destination resort/dockside casino site.

Tax Assessor/Collector Edward Murtagh told the board that if the area is annexed the East Hancock Fire Protection District will lose 4.00 mills set by the county. That millage amounts to about $707 a year.

Murtagh also said, "The only thing I see that you're going to lose is the boarding fees, machine taxes, whatever."

However, at this time, the county has no mechanism for collecting any boarding fees or machine taxes. The city has had passed by the State Legislature a local and private bill allowing Bay St. Louis to impose a boarding fee of up to $2.50 per person and a tax of $100 per gaming machine or device on the dockside gambling vessels.

Murtagh suggested that the supervisors ask the city officials for concessions.

Supervisor Alton "Dolph" Kellar expressed a concern that the county will not benefit from the Bay Cove operation if it is annexed into Bay St. Louis.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Edward Favre refuted that, reminding the supervisors that the county will receive about 75 percent of the monies earmarked by state law from gaming revenues.

The Gaming Control Act of 1990 allows a municipality to impose a tax on a development's gross revenues. This tax is broken down as follows: 0.4 percent of all the gross revenue up to $50,000 a month; 0.6 percent for revenues from $50,000 to $134,000; 0.8 percent for

Mears: U.S.-Soviet trade opportunities not good

BY TRACI BONNEY

Optimism is good, but realism may be more practical in dealing with the former Soviet Union, according to a former official of the U.S. Embassy in Russia.

Mike Mears, the son of Coral Gaudet of Waveland, is now vice president of private placement investments for GE Investments. For three years, he was a commercial trade representative for the United States to the now defunct Soviet Union.

Recently, he was on the Coast on behalf of a group of investors who are looking for rental properties (apartment complexes) locally, in Slidell and in Baton Rouge to buy.

He said that while western companies and investors are rubbing their hands together in anticipation of great opportunities in the new Commonwealth of Independent Republics, they would do better to know the facts of life in the now-dead Soviet Union.

BACKGROUND, CURRENT EVENTS

After doing his undergraduate work at West Point and serving in the military five years, Mears became involved in small company startups. When he heard about a government program employing business people in the trade service, he took and passed the examination required to enter the program.

Mears was sent to the American Embassy in Russia in 1986 as a commercial trade representative. He stayed there until 1989 and saw many lot of the changes that have made national and international headlines in recent years.

"A lot of the reporting in the Western press from 1986 to about 1988 was overly positive," he commented. "The American media reported a lot on glasnost and perestroika, and not much was really happening for a while. Not until late 1988 and early 1989 did things start to open up over there."

Now, just the opposite is happening. Mears is a co-founder of the Center for the Study of Soviet Change, which he said can't match the rate of its publications to the rate of change occurring in the fledgling republics.

In addition, now the press is focusing on the negative impacts of the Soviet Union's dissolution. Mears said, "There are a lot of positive things happening in Russia, but now the

Firefighter's death under investigation

The Bay St. Louis Police Department is investigating the death of off-duty firefighter Edward J. Kief.

Police Chief Frank McNeil said Tuesday that around 3 a.m. Sunday, Kief, 26, of North Second Street, was killed when the car he was driving apparently skidded out of control, hit a tree and overturned on Beach Boulevard near Ulman Avenue. The car burst into flames with Kief inside.

No further information was available at press time.

Card of Thanks

I am experiencing very warm and grateful personal feelings at this moment. This is my opportunity to thank so many people who have contributed coats and jackets to the needy.

In particular, I would like to thank Bill Burrows, his wife and staff at Burrows Cleaners, who so generously cleaned all the donated jackets before distribution.

The Rotary Club of Bay St. Louis, the Rotarians and their families, consistent with this year's theme, "Look Beyond Yourself," have exemplified our theme.

Thanks to Rev. Van Carpenter, who is the community chairperson and spearheaded this project, and to all who have donated time and jackets for this cause.

Matthew 25:40 says... "In so far as you did this to one of the least brothers of mine, you did it to me."

There are more jackets available Tuesday, Thursday and Friday between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. and on Saturday, 10 a.m. to noon at the SVPD Thrift Store on Coleman Avenue in Waveland.

Donated jackets will be accepted at the office of the Sea Coast Echo.

With warm regards,
 Jay Fleuriot

ST. ANN AND ST. JOHN NEWS

Thoughts for meditation:
 The desire to pray can be a prayer in itself.

The Holy Spirit helps us with our daily problems and in our praying when we don't even know what we should pray for.

Romans 8:26
 Prayer is neither black magic nor is it a form of demand note. Prayer is a relationship.

—John Heuss
 Lord, when I pray, also make me aware of listening to what you might have to say to me. Amen.

Karen Williams, parish adult CYO advisor, will meet with St. Ann-St. John members in the parish hall at 7 p.m. tonight. St. Ann-St. John Confirmation Class will immediately follow from 8-9 p.m.

St. Ann-St. John Altar Society members will meet in the parish hall at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 22 for their first meeting of the new year.

Irene Graff, Altar Society secretary, would like to remind members their 1992 dues are now due.

The ladies' monthly luncheon-social will follow the meeting as usual. The public is invited; just $3 per person. Drinks will be available, as well as delicious desserts.

Then stay for an afternoon of games. Everyone is welcome.

Adult Education Spring Classes will begin Wednesday, Jan. 29 after the 6:30 p.m. Mass. Theme will be "The Eucharist." It will be very exciting and informative. Bring your friends.

Pre-baptism class will be Thursday, Jan. 30 at 7 p.m. in church. Those interested, call the rectory in advance to register.

media is focusing on the bad things — the problems with food shortages, the economy and so on."

MOVIES VS. REAL LIFE

While in Russia, he found out that some of what we see in movies and television shows is actually true. "The KGB had people watching us all the time. Wherever we went, agents followed us."

"They also screened who we got to see. They limited our contacts to government officials for the most part; we had very limited contact, if any, with the everyday people."

"So what it amounted to was that the U.S. diplomatic corps members all saw the same 7,000 Russians while we were there. The KGB wasted an incredible amount of manpower watching us."

Mears told of an incident involving some car vandalism. "We received a cable from the States saying someone had slashed the tires on some cars in front of the Russian Embassy in Washington D.C., so we all thought, 'Uh-oh, we know what's coming now.'"

"Sure enough, the next day when I got into my car, the windshield wipers came on and I couldn't get them to go off. Apparently, someone had tampered with a tiny electronic relay and rigged it so the windshield wipers couldn't be cut off. It took weeks to get the parts to fix it, so everywhere I went I had these wipers going back and forth."

In the 1980s, the Western world reacted indignantly, to say the least, when it was discovered that a U.S. Embassy building being constructed in

Mike Mears

Russia was riddled with monitoring devices. Mears said that was no exaggeration.

"The place was full of 'bugs.' In fact, the building was just one big antenna."

He said the food shortages in stores also are not exaggerated. "When I was there, my wife and I did our 'convenience' shopping in Finland. Here, American stores have about 17,000 to 20,000 different items to choose from, but in Russia the stores have only about 23 to 27 items available."

"So when we in the U.S. hear about a bread shortage in Russia we don't think much about it, but in Russia a bread shortage, or any food shortage, is devastating."

SOVIET CULTURE

Cultural differences between Russians and Americans were very apparent to Mears. "People are people, whether they're Russian or American," he remarked. "But Soviet friendships tend to be stronger and deeper than ours. A Soviet person will have two or three close friends that they share literally everything with, but they're very rude to strangers."

"I guess it's a defense mechanism. Here in the U.S., we tend to be more shallow in our friendships, but we're more trusting in general. But we're in an opportunity society, where optimism is an asset. Soviets may seem pessimistic, xenophobic and a bit jealous of others' good fortune, but they are in a survival society where those traits are beneficial."

"Also, their culture has been sealed off from the western world for hundreds of years. Western thought has not influenced their culture at all."

OTHER PROBLEMS

Lack of governmental and industrial infrastructure, basic institutions (legal, religious, financial and political), and an exchangeable currency, as well as a massive and well-entrenched bureaucracy, are other stumbling blocks the new independent republics face in starting trade with the western world, Mears added.

Mears related an example of the incredible bureaucracy in Russia. "When Soviet workers were withdrawn from the U.S. embassy in October 1986, we found out they weren't just drivers and janitors."

"One of our people tried to get a small customs package cleared. He started out at one office, was sent to another, then another and another. After running this amazing gauntlet of paperwork and officials, it took him 15 different signatures, 16 seals and two days to get this little package cleared."

Some might think that with the fall of the Union, the bureaucracy will collapse as well. However, Mears said that isn't the case.

"Needless to say, bureaucracy did not die with the Soviet Union on Christmas, 1991. (Boris) Yeltsin has already created a somewhat parallel bureaucratic structure and a substantial number of the 17 million have shifted positions but can still hinder commerce."

"Countless deals and proposals lie in Russian in-boxes today as aides to Yeltsin cannot or will not make decisions on them without the boss's approval."

THE FUTURE

In conclusion, Mears said he thinks 1992 will be even harsher than the past few years for the newly formed Commonwealth of Independent Republics. Funds will be a real problem, with drops in hard currency sales to the western world continuing to fall and cuts from Commonwealth members in purchases from the West increasing.

Other problems — shortages of food and medical supplies, inability of the republics to repay monetary loans, limited negotiations between republics and the West because of fear of foreign exploitation — will compound the already strained situation, Mears added.

"All of this means that the financial difficulties of the former Soviet Union could well extend to the year 2000."

State urges safe driving

BY TRACI BONNEY

What can you do to help ensure a safe 1992 on state roadways? Make two New Year's resolutions: buckle up, and don't drive after drinking.

The Mississippi Department of Public Safety's Division of Public Safety Planning is encouraging all motorists to fasten their safety belts, and make sure their passengers do the same, before moving from their parking spot. The division is also reminding people that they should not drive after drinking.

"Safety belts, child safety seats and sober drivers are all good ideas for New Year's resolutions," said Billy Terrell, director of the division's Office of Highway Safety. "We have said this many times, but statistics show that some drivers have not gotten the message."

Not only is using a seat belt easy, Terrell said, but it is also in accordance with state law, which mandates use of child safety seats for children up to age 2 and safety belts for older children and adults.

"Each year, motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death for people ages 1-34. These crashes seriously injure more than a million drivers and passengers and are the number one cause of on-the-job deaths," he stated.

Many injuries and deaths occur when the driver or a passenger in the vehicle collides with the steering wheel, dashboard, windshield and frame, window, roof or another passenger. Safety belts prevent those collisions by holding people in place. Child safety seats keep infants from becoming airborne.

"Safety belts also will help drivers keep control of vehicles in an emergency, prevent major injuries and are the best protection against drunk or careless drivers," Terrell added.

Statistics show that alcohol plays a role in more than half the traffic fatalities in the state, according to a study by the Mis-issippi Coroner/Medical Examiner Association.

According to public safety planning division spokesman Ron Sennett, five fatalities were recorded on state highway patrol roads in Hancock County through October of 1991. Of those five, two of three recorded fatalities were reported to have alcohol in their bloodstream.

Sennett said that even without information on the other two fatalities, that figure amounts to a 40 percent alcohol-related crash fatality rate for Hancock County.

While the Waveland and Bay St. Louis police departments reported no crash-related fatalities in 1991, the county Sheriff's Department reported two, with one alcohol-related.

Added to the state report, this amounts to a 42 percent rate for the county.

Terrell concluded, "By all means, Mississippians should make a resolution for the new year: to start or continue the use of safety belts and child protection devices and never combine driving and drinking alcoholic beverages. If you're not wearing a safety belt and driving sober, you are not doing everything you can to protect yourself and other motorists."

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Since we have so many Legionnaires and Auxiliary members in the area, I thought I would mention the big "Miss World Pageant" which will be presented Friday.

The pageant is sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary and will be from 7 to 11 p.m. Friday, Jan. 17 at the Royal d'Iberville in Biloxi.

It is my understanding there will be two contestants from the area.

One is a certain Bay St. Louis councilman, and the other is a Waveland policeman.

In case you are wondering, it will be a "Womanless Miss World Pageant." Mrs. Keet Peetz is the director of the pageant.

Tickets are only $4 each and available from Lou Wilkerson in Bay St. Louis or at the door.

The pageant is part of the annual Legion and Auxiliary's Conference being held this weekend at the Royal d'Iberville.

Sounds like it is going to be a fun evening.

Waveland Police Chief Jimmy Varnell called the other day seeking photos of former Waveland mayors and law enforcement officials.

Donald Dorn was the first police chief in Waveland, and prior to him Fred Bourgeois was the last town marshal.

I know that mayors go back prior to 1900. In fact, in my Archives column coming up Sunday, there is an article about a mayor losing a barn to a fire in 1897.

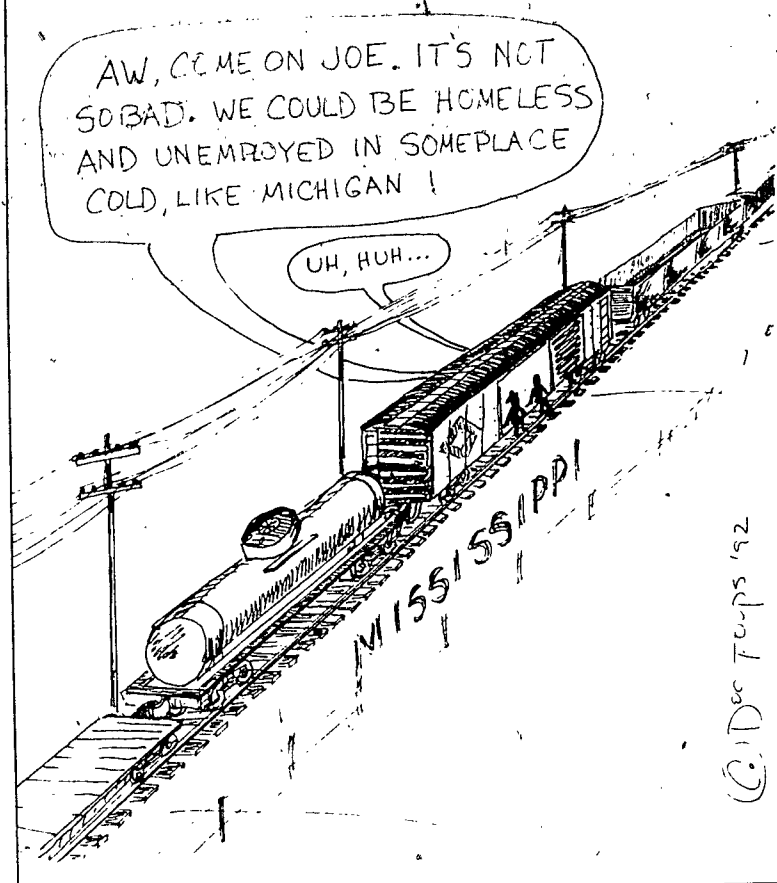

Chief Varnell said he would return the photos. He would have copies made, and it really doesn't matter what size they are.

Waveland has been around a long time, and I am sure there must be some relatives or friends of earlier mayors and law enforcement officials of the city.

I am hoping they will be able to acquire the photos so they can be displayed as part of the city's history.

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI HOUSE

By Representative J.P. Compretta

Legislature off to busy start

Organizational chores demanded most of the attention in the House of Representatives as the new legislative session got underway last week with swearing-in ceremonies, election of officers, and adoption of operating rules.

State finances, education, economic development and health care will be among top legislative priorities in coming weeks.

Lawmakers also will be working on numerous other important issues—everything from initiative and referendum to drug abuse to proposed changes in workers' compensation laws.

The session got off to a brisk start Jan. 7 with the families and friends of legislators on hand for the traditional opening-day activities. The oath of office was administered to the 122 House members soon after the opening gavel was rapped by Secretary of State Dick Mulpus.

Speaker Tim Ford of Tupelo was re-elected to his second term as presiding officer of the House, and veteran lawmaker Robert Clark of Holmes County won the position of Speaker Pro Tempore. Clark, starting his seventh term, was the state's first black legislator in modern times and is the first black member to hold the No. 2 spot in the House.

Duties of the Speaker include appointment of most committees and assignment of bills to committees. The Speaker Pro Tempore acts as chairman of the management committee which oversees House personnel and business matters and fills in as presiding officer when the Speaker is absent.

This is the first session of a new four-year term although there has been speculation that, because of legislative reapportionment, legislators may be required by a court order to run again before their four-year terms have expired. The redrawing of legislative districts is among the many issues facing lawmakers.

An increase in legislative activity was expected as the second week began with the inauguration on Tuesday, Jan. 14, of Governor Kirk Fordice. Swearing-in ceremonies were last Thursday in the House Chamber for new Lieutenant Governor Eddie Briggs and other top state officials.

Other highlights of last week included a farewell address by outgoing Governor Ray Mabus. Education was a central theme of the 35-minute speech as the Governor reviewed his four years in office and urged lawmakers to continue working for improvements in education, economic development, health care, and racial harmony.

Legislative relations with the executive branch was among the topics at a special two-day program on the legislative process, primarily designed for newly elected lawmakers. Participants also were briefed on such matters as the rules and procedures of writing laws, the life of a bill, committee work, and the Legislature and the media.

In other developments, Charles J. Jackson Jr. was re-elected Clerk of the House, scores of bills and resolutions were dropped in the hopper to await study by various committees, and the same operating rules used in the 1988-91 term were adopted by House members.

The members of two key House committees, rules and management, were chosen by their colleagues, two coming from each Congressional District. The rules provide for other House committees to be appointed by the Speaker.

The 1992 session is scheduled to last 125 days, while subsequent sessions during the four-year term are limited to 90 days. A two-thirds vote of the House and Senate is necessary to extend a session.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bay has ordinance against BB guns, but not against rifles

To the Editor:

On Jan. 2 I found that the city of Bay St. Louis does not have an ordinance on the books for firearms in the city limits. I am very upset about this.

On New Year's Eve my neighbor shot off six rounds from a 357 magnum into the air.

I have an eight-month old son who was sleeping in his bed not more than 20 feet from my neighbor's back door.

Accidents do happen, and if a bullet would have ricocheted off something and come into the window, the baby might have been hit.

I went to a judge Jan. 2 and was told that you cannot shoot a BB gun in the city limits.

I feel that something is very wrong here.

I am concerned about the safety of my son, and I do think that I am not alone.

Our children are our future; they need a safe environment. If we do not have that, we have nothing.

Litter destroys beauty of Bay's beachfront

Dear Editor,

So much has already been said about littering, I hesitate to say more. But since I live on the beachfront, I, perhaps, may be more sensitive than most to the daily accumulation of trash and garbage in the area of the Uman Avenue Pier.

We are indeed fortunate to have such a fine recreational facility as the pier, but it is slowly being destroyed by vandalism and trashing by those who do not care.

The pier is frequently damaged and the electric lighting ripped off. The trash containers either disappear or are rolled down the bank with the contents spilled everywhere.

It seems to be a favorite pastime of some to park with a view of the water and consume a fast food lunch. Although trash containers are placed by the city within easy reach, the pavement is always strewn with pizza boxes, paper bags, beer cans, plastic cups, cartons, and you name it. Almost any day you can stroll from State Street to McDonald Lane and easily pick up two dozen bottles, cans or cups.

I believe most people are responsible and pick up their trash. Those few who do not can certainly make an unsightly mess for all to see. Sometimes I wonder if these persons understand the meaning of the word "litter." If not, we must educate them one way or another.

What else can be done? The authorities can police the area more frequently and issue fines to those who disobey the law. Litter barrels should be emptied more frequently and replaced when necessary.

Perhaps we should seek support from those who sell take-out food and drink.

The Hancock County Anti-Litter Committee, headed by Carol Vegas, is making a strong pitch this year to clean up our beachfront. It will require effort on the part of everyone to achieve the goal of "Litter Free by 93."

If and when we become "litter free" I can envision a new look: why not a "scenic drive" beachfront—something Bay St. Louis can really be proud of, and something that will certainly attract tourists and visitors. Instead of cans, bottles and food containers, why can't we have attractive landscaping, shrubbery, flower beds, and crepe myrtles, litter-free, overlooking our most valuable resource—the beautiful Bay of St. Louis?

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI SENATE

By Senator Vic Frankiewicz

Sweeping changes mark Senate committee assignments

The Mississippi Senate began this year with a renewed spirit of cooperation and optimism. The opening gavel was rapped Jan. 7, officially convening the 1992 Legislative Session which will run through May 10.

After we took the oath of office, the first order of business was to adopt new rules for the Senate. The changes adopted removed the Lieutenant Governor from the chairmanship of the Rules Committee. The strong powers of the Lieutenant Governor were severely criticized during the election, and this rules change responded by reducing his power.

I believe we should have done more to restore legislative power back to the Senators by trimming back the Lieutenant Governor's authority, but there was not enough support in the Senate to make more sweeping changes.

Newly-elected Lieutenant Governor Eddie Briggs was sworn in before a crowded chamber on Jan. 9. With the common goal of providing a better Mississippi, Briggs pledged to work with legislators in a cooperative manner. He also promised to change the way we do business and delivered on that promise almost immediately.

Only minutes after his oath of office, Briggs announced sweeping changes in committee assignments. Several new faces are now chairmen and chairwomen, and I think these changes will be good.

My committee assignments include the chairmanship of the Committee to Investigate State Offices and Departments, Vice Chair of Fees, Salaries and Administration, and membership on Agriculture, Constitution, Economic Development, Finance, Ports and Marine Resources, and Municipalities.

I am particularly excited about being on the Constitution Committee because we will be working on initiative and referendum. As a co-sponsor of this legislation, I am confident that we can get the Senate to pass this progressive measure to return power to the people of Mississippi.

The state's financial problems will be another top priority for the legislature this year. Other major issues in the weeks ahead will include education, economic development, Medicaid funding, a state lottery and legislative reapportionment. Hundreds of bills and resolutions will be introduced this week on these and many other issues. That number will continue to grow as the session progresses.

The 1992 Senate is now organized and ready to go about meeting the needs of this state. If you would like to contact me at the Capitol, the address is P.O. Box 1018, Jackson, Mississippi 39215, or you may call me at 359-3267.

On weekends, please feel free to call me at home, 467-2355.

Should a state be able to dictate how a restaurant serves its eggs?

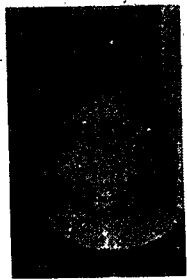

"If they can prove it is a hazard, yes, I think they should if the risk to the customer is high enough. We have been eating eggs for years without problems, why now do we seem to have one. Possibly their testing should be questioned."

Mary Daggett

"No. The state should not tell restaurants how to serve their food. They should take the same approach with risk foods as they do with alcohol and tobacco. Warn the people as to the dangers and let them decide for themselves."

Louis Decell

A DIFFERENT VIEW

By Traci Bonney

Is it 1984?

I read something Monday that I find hard to swallow. Apparently, the state of New Jersey (site of Limbo, Hell and other historic landmarks, if you listen to my old college buddies) has decided it is in the citizens' best interests to ban raw and undercooked eggs from being served in restaurants.

On the surface, this doesn't sound too bad; the whole idea is to protect people from salmonella, a bacteria that can lead to food poisoning and in extremely rare cases, death.

Okay, so the state of New Jersey doesn't want anyone to get food poisoning or die. However, in their infinite wisdom and abundance of caution, that state's legislators may have put the hurt on the restaurant business.

Now, you could be cited for ordering (if you're a customer) or serving (if you're the cook or waiter) over-easy eggs, Eggs Benedict (because of the hollandaise sauce), soft-boiled eggs, Caesar salads or even eggnog on holidays.

How does New Jersey plan to enforce this piece of legislation — a Food Patrol?

I can see it now: the officer enters Joe's Diner early on a busy Monday morning. He has the tools of his trade attached to his belt: a citation pad, pen, handcuffs (for those felons guilty of Resisting Cooking), an egg beater and a hotplate.

Joe is just about to serve a plate of toast, jam, hashbrowns, bacon and over-easy eggs to a customer when he catches sight of the gleaming gold egg-shaped badge on the Food Patrolman's chest. "Uh, uh, hold on a minute, Jim, I don't think I got this order right. Let me check."

The eggs disappear and return to the plate several minutes later. Joe slides the order to Jim, who looks at the yellow mass on his plate.

"Hey, Joe, I didn't order scrambled! I ordered —" Jim sees the Food Patrolman too — "hardboiled. But don't sweat it; I'll eat these."

The officer scowls — he almost had a bust. "I'll get you yet, Joe," he growls, and stalks out of the diner in search of other culinary law violators.

REALITY CHECK. This is 1992, folks. We passed right through 1984 without George Orwell's horribly pessimistic novel becoming reality, and now some lawmaking muckity-muck is trying to tell us what we can and can't eat?

Why didn't the legislators simply enact a law protecting restaurateurs from lawsuits if a customer orders a dish that is potentially hazardous to his health? What are restaurant owners supposed to do — ask people to show proof they can safely eat red meat, pork or other possibly dangerous or difficult-to-digest foods? Is the guy at the corner ice cream store going to card kids to make sure they're not lactose-intolerant?

Our founding fathers didn't plan to give government the authority to stick its collective nose in every facet of our lives, so why do lawmakers now think they have the right to do so?

Well, enough for now. I have to catch a plane to Jersey to smuggle Jim a plate of over-easy eggs.

Four New Orleanians arrested in local drug investigation

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Hancock County Metropolitan Narcotics Task Force may have apprehended several major drug distributors from New Orleans in a recent arrest, according to task force director Glenn Strong.

Strong said the Waveland Police Department received a call around 3:30 p.m. from a local motel that four people were attempting to defraud the motel by not paying the bill but continually registering for different rooms under assumed names.

Waveland patrolmen Gene Boswell and Brett Ladner responded to the call. Upon arrival, they met with the manager, who directed them to the room the four were occupying. In addition to the four who were later arrested, the officers found drug paraphernalia, Strong said.

"The innkeeper pointed out that a ceiling tile had been moved. When the officers investigated, they found a box in the ceiling. The box contained cash and a bag which had in it rock (crack) cocaine."

The officers notified the narcotics task force. On further investigation, more narcotics were found.

The four suspects, three men and one woman, were arrested and charged with possession with intent to distribute crack cocaine. At the time of the report, all were in the Hancock County jail under bonds of $50,000 each.

Arrested were John O. Peterson, 21; Darren Robinson, 22; Robert M. Donaldson, 21; and Deborah Ann McClendon, 18.

Strong said approximately $1,220 in cash and 107 rocks of crack cocaine were found. The street value of the crack is estimated at between $2,500 and $3,000.

Strong commented, "We feel that they were major distributors for New Orleans in this area."

Agent Gregory Martin, representing Waveland on the task force, is in charge of the investigation, which is continuing. Agent Terry Eley, representing Bay St. Louis, and Strong are assisting.

County

revenues from $134,000 to $2.5 million; and one percent for revenues in excess of $2.5 million.

The monies from these taxes are sent to the state, which then divides them according to population and returns the funds to the municipality and the county. Since the population in the county is greater than that within the Bay St. Louis city limits, the county will receive the greater share of the monies, Favre explained.

Concerning the fire district's potential loss, he said the city can work out something with the district if necessary to offset the loss. District commissioner Ethel Breaux has already contacted him about the matter, he added.

Dealing with the boarding fees and machine taxes, Favre said they were not meant to generate a windfall, but were calculated to help cover additional city expenses caused by the establishment of a gaming development.

"We need to look beyond the boarding fee to the tax revenues the county will get and to we will provide the services for the development," Favre commented.

He said the services he meant were not fire and police protection, which both the city and county can give, but utility service. The area to be annexed is isolated from other unincorporated areas because all the land around the annexation area is in the city limits.

Therefore, Favre reasoned, the city is in a better position to provide gas, water and sewer services than is the county.

After discussing the matter, the supervisors made an informal survey. All said they have no objection to the city's annexing Bay Cove, but Kellar added to his approval a condition that no additional future taxes to county residents result from the annexation.

Kellar stated, "I will vote for that annexation with the understanding that it will not cost the residents one copper cent."

Favre assured Kellar that the city has no intention of doing anything that would force the county to raise taxes. "We're county residents, too," he reminded the board. "Even though we live in the city, the city is still in the county, and we pay county taxes along with ours."

Scafile

Planning and Zoning Commission meeting, when Scafile and Rafferty appeared together to present recommendations they drafted jointly at Favre's request to amend the city's zoning ordinance governing location and restrictions on proposed gaming sites.

"John has been the city's attorney on zoning matters for years, and two heads are better than one," said Favre, referring to the drafting of the city's resolution.

"He (Scafile) was not involved in the gaming study (independently conducted by Buckhurst Fish Hutton Katz Inc.), where gaming sites were approved."

Rafferty will continue to be retained by the city, said Favre, to deal with "strictly gaming issues," like court challenges which the city may encounter.

Lottery

If the bill is approved, a separate resolution would be needed to establish the details of a lottery system, if the state chooses to go that route, Frankiewicz said.

"Whether or not the lottery makes sense is a different argument now than it was last year. Now that the Louisiana lottery is in place, a state lottery will be less lucrative for Mississippi than it would have before."

"What we will have to see is whether a lottery in Mississippi will hold enough money in the state or whether the money will continue to go out of the state. If we can't offer big enough jackpots, we'll probably continue to lose money to Louisiana and Florida."

"We may need to look to a tri-state lottery to solve the problem." Frankiewicz and Claude Bilbo of Pascagoula, the two Coast senators on the committee, both favored the bill to eliminate Section 98 from the state constitution.

nite delay by Circuit Court Judge Kosta Vlahos in order that he may prepare a defense on the two charges.

Rose withdrew his initial change of venue request after 10 potential jurors from Hancock County were determined to be unbiased by pre-trial publicity.

The Lombardo women were residing in California when charges were brought against them in 1989. They remain free on bond at this time.

Caranna said he expects the trial to be rescheduled in May, June or July.

Zoning

"I think that section applies to changes in established zoning districts. In the case of initial zoning, I don't believe a two-thirds majority is needed if an objection is filed."

"We have gone through the city and county records, and have not found anything to indicate that the water area is zoned. Based on what we have, it appears that there is no zoning for the water."

The land side of the property in question is already zoned, and is adjacent to a commercial highway district.

Scafile said if the zoning amendment is not passed, the possibility exists that Mardi Gras Casino will be licensed and be able to develop the site with very little regulatory restraint from the city.

"If the water area remains unzoned, I don't see how the city can say much about what happens on it," he stated.

Crane contended that Section 17-1-17 pertains to changes in zoning regulations, not zoning of a particular area. "The way I read this, any change of zoning regulations is covered by this section. Since the proposed amendment is a change in city zoning regulations, I believe this section of law applies."

Barnes, Marshall reign over Kamehameha krewe

Special to the Echo

The Diamondhead Boaters Association Krewe of Kamehameha has selected its king and queen for 1992. King Akua Kai XVIII is L. T. "Bud" Barnes, and his queen is M'Lis "Missy" Marshall.

The krewe's annual coronation ball is January 18 at the Diamondhead Country Club. The new king and queen will be crowned, and following a seated dinner, the krewe will dance to the music of "Vieux Carre."

The Mardi Gras ball will be February 28 at the Mississippi Beach Hotel in Biloxi. There will be a dinner, dancing to the music of "Rockdreams," and a show provided by the Diamondhead Boaters Association Players.

The following day, the Mardi Gras season will conclude with a parade of boats and a party at the Diamondhead Yacht Club.

Club

Barnes is a native of Roanoke, Va., but spent most of his adult life in Middle Tennessee. He is a "Rambling wreck from Georgia Tech," did undergraduate studies at the College of William and Mary and graduate studies at the University of Tennessee Space Institute. He retired in 1989 as a group vice-president of Sverdrup Technology Inc.

He joined the Boaters Association in the summer of 1987, shortly after acquiring the "Lazy Liz" (the 4th). He served as vice-commander and publicity chair and is currently harbor master for the Hurricane Hole.

Barnes has been an active participant in community activities. He was chair for two years for the Stennis Space Center Industrial Division of the Gulf Coast multi-county Combined (charitable) Agency Campaign. He later served two years as deputy chair of the Diamondhead portion of the Hancock County United Way Campaign.

Serving as an elder of the Diamondhead Community Church, which he and his wife, Liz, joined in 1987, he has been very active on the building committee and chaired the finance and stewardship committee during the past year. In addition, he has served as chair of the property committee and a member of the long range planning committee.

He was a member of the USCG Auxiliary Flotilla No. 33 and a member of the now inactive Aloha Club. He has been a member of the Diamondhead Men's Golf Association since retiring, is a member of the Krewe of Diamondhead and is currently a director of the Diamondhead Community Association.

Bud and his wife of more than 42 years, Liz, moved from Tennessee to Diamondhead in 1986. They have two sons, a daughter, three grandsons, and three granddaughters.

M'Lis "Missy" Marshall is a Long Beach native. A former professional actress and model, she also produced and directed industrial entertainment in New York where she and her husband, Don, were living.

Since returning to the Coast and moving to Diamondhead, Marshall has been very active in community affairs. She is president of the Diamondhead Little Theater, former president of the Little School PTO, troop leader for the Diamondhead area Daisy Girl Scouts.

She has participated in fund-raising projects for the American Cancer Society and the Coast Episcopal Schools. She has shared her acting, directing, and producing talents with all, including the American Cancer Society, Diamondhead Little Theater, Diamondhead Performing Arts Group, and the Diamondhead Boaters Association.

Missy and her husband, the Boaters' commodore, have two daughters, MacAllister, 5½, and Sarah, 3. She has been a Boater for five years. Her hobbies are blue water fishing, boating, and ballet.

Randolph: Ready for new challenges

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Superintendent Terrell Randolph recently left the Hancock County School District after 12 years of service.

With little time to spare, he will re-enter the education system when he begins work on the dissertation that will earn him a PhD in education administration.

"I have many options available," Randolph explained, "but until I finish my dissertation, I have no definite plans."

Randolph lost his bid for reelection in November to former Gulfview assistant principal Myrna Bourgeois.

Though he leaves behind the physical accomplishment of the newly built junior/senior high school, he considers the district's growth in academic standings to have been his greatest contribution.

"When I first took office in 1976 there was an emphasis on athletics. The priority was not academics. There was a low self-esteem present in the students."

"Students who were graduating were not receiving an education that would prepare them for life or for college."

Randolph said prior to 1982 only 15 percent of Hancock's graduates attended college. Today, over 60 percent are continuing their educations in two-year or four-year programs.

It is this pursuit, for higher academic standings, that Randolph attributes as his reason for seeking the superintendent's seat.

dolph attributes as his reason for seeking the superintendent's seat.

Terrell Randolph

He claims his ability to make a decision and follow through with that decision, whether it be popular or not, as a personal attribute.

BACKGROUND

In 1965, Randolph took his first teaching position in Huntsville, Ala., where he taught political science and coached football.

He accepted a coaching job in the Madison County School District in 1967, and remained there for two years, when he returned home to Hancock County.

At Hancock North Central High School, he was head football and track coach. In 1971 he led the Hancock girls to the state track championship.

Moving to Copiah County, Randolph accepted a job at Crystal Springs High School, where he remained until 1976.

While there he obtained his master's degree in education administration and supervision from Mississippi College in Clinton.

"I had been away from home for four years; however, I had decided when I was coaching at Hancock that I could make a difference academically in the Hancock County District," he stated.

"I made my decision to run for superintendent of Hancock County School District in 1975. It was my first time seeking a political office. I was living in Jackson, teaching in Crystal Springs and running for office in Hancock."

Randolph defeated six other candidates in his first political race. Included in those six, where the incumbent and two former superintendents of education.

16TH SECTION LAND
Soon after taking office, Randolph began a push for the renegotiation of 16th Section land leases.

At that time, the district was receiving approximately 50 cents per acre from its 11,000 acres of 16th Section lands, totaling $400 of income per year.

Randolph said, "I couldn't stand by and not do something about the inequities. It was a fight I had to continue, and I think you can see how my stand during the mid-1970's is paying off in the 1990's."

In 1978 Randolph assisted in the drafting of the 16th Section Reform Act, and Mississippi Land Commissioner John Ed Ainsworth used Hancock County's example to reform every county in the state.

Randolph added, "This past year the Hancock County District earned about $270,000 from mineral and land leases, compared to the $400 a year our system was receiving prior to the reform."

"Over the last 10 years," he continued, "$1.5 million has been saved for the school district."

"It is because of these monies the citizens of Hancock County needed to repay only $6.6 million for the new school instead of the entire $11 million used in its construction."

According to Randolph, he received a great deal of criticism during these years and credits his 1980 loss for re-election as reflective of the feathers he ruffled.

Two years later, he reclaimed his seat in a special election after the presiding

Bunny Matthews

'Vic and Nat'ly' creator drops in on Bay business

BY TRACI BONNEY
Guess who's comin' ta town? Yeah you rite! It's Bunny Matthews, creator of the popular New Orleans cartoon "Vic and Nat'ly."

Matthews's chronicles of the life of Vic and Nat'ly Broussard, owners of a bar and po-boy shop in the Ninth Ward of New Orleans, have run the Times-Picayune for 10 years. Now the Broussards have laid aside their mynne knives and stopped by for a little trip out of the Ninth Ward (Nat'ly'll be pleased with that) to Bay St. Louis to help Teresa Stanbro celebrate the opening of Trendsetters at its new location.

Vic, Nat'ly, Tootsie the chihuahua who lives in a white coffee cup, Rex the roach and grandson Arthur are accompanying Matthews to the January 18 grand opening. Matthews and crew will be on hand from 2 to 6 p.m., selling and signing some of his posters and books about the Broussards' activities.

Even though Nat'ly complains from time to time that she and Vic hardly ever get out of the Ninth Ward, they have been seen at the World's Fair (in a mural done by Matthews in the New Orleans pavilion), at the zoo (in an exhibit called New Orleans Wildlife: Vic and Nat'ly Go to the Zoo) and on Steppin' Out New Orleans Fridays on Channel 12 (actors do the voice-overs for the characters).

The couple also reigned as King and Queen of the Krewe of TUCKS in 1989 and performed at Le Petit Theatre in New Orleans in two productions which showed them as the opera and a musical review.

Matthews, a friend of Stanbro, has written/drawn several Vic and Nat'ly books and posters. He has also illustrated two books, Too Smart to be Rich and Bone Appetit, a gourmet offering for canines.

In addition, he has completed a number of paintings, including some 400 for a New Orleans hospital for the mentally handicapped and disabled.

Matthews also draws Tammany Toons for the St. Tammany Parish Sunday edition of the Times-Picayune. The weekly cartoon depicts various aspects of life in St. Tammany Parish.

Before starting the long-running Vic and Nat'ly cartoon, Matthews drew a cartoon for the now-defunct weekly newspaper, Figaro.

He lives in Abita Springs, La., with his wife and two sons. Last year, he taught cartooning classes at two junior high schools in his area.

HMC Pink Ladies hold training

An orientation session for Hancock Medical Center Auxiliary (Pink Ladies) members will begin Monday, January 20 in the HMC classroom from 1 until 3 p.m.

Training sessions will be once a week for several weeks.

Those wishing to volunteer, or desiring additional information, may contact Theresa Bourgeois at 467-7792.

Elizabeth Veglia

Veglia featured Sunday

BY T. H. (DOC) TOUPS

Area artist Elizabeth Veglia will show some of her recent work during a tea/show at Serenity Books, 126½ Main Street, Bay St. Louis. The Sunday, Jan. 19 event will be between 2 and 5 p.m.

Veglia has been working with mosaics for 10 years. Her mosaic murals adorn public buildings in Ocean Springs and Gulfport, and she is currently involved in negotiations to do similar work in New Orleans.

"I feel that I am taking mosaics into extreme areas, using unusual materials," the artist said.

In addition to mosaic pieces, Sunday's show will feature some of Veglia's paintings and sculpture. Though she does work with various art forms, the artist's first love is the ceramic medium.

"Mosaics are gaining popularity now, because there is a 'cleanness' to them," she said, and added, "Their colors never change or fade as can happen with some other art forms."

Randolph

superintendent was removed from office.

In 1983 he was elected to his second full term, which he recalled as "a most critical period in education," as the Mississippi Education Reform Act had been passed in 1982.

CHANGE OF ATTITUDE

As the Hancock District entered the decade of the 80's, Randolph claimed an overall change of attitude towards education became apparent.

"Our county has grown into a diverse population," he stated. "We have long-time residents, new working people associated with NASA and other large companies, and retirees."

"Hancock County grew in the 1980's, as it continues to grow, and people began to believe we needed a new facility."

NEW SCHOOL

Randolph had a dream. A dream of a centralized modern educational complex. The necessity for that complex and its location, are two issues that led to now legendary disputes between the superintendent and county residents.

But when the smoke cleared a decade later, the new Hancock Junior/Senior High School stood.

The school, costing $11 million to build encompasses 203,000 square feet. It is designed to accommodate up to 3,000 students. At present there are 2,650 students registered, compared to 1,750 in 1976.

Randolph said, "I'm excited about what I see here in the county. We now have a positive attitude about education and it is being shown in the confidence of our students."

"We have moved from the absolute bottom of academic performance to near the top. "I will stack up our kids against any in the state."

Along with innovative programs, the district has implemented renovation and construction projects at two of its elementary schools.

This past summer the district also assumed possession of the Pearl River Vocational-Technical Center adjacent to Hancock High campus.

Randolph could often be found among the students of Hancock County's four public schools when he was not in his office at Stennis Air Park.

"I have spent as much time as possible listening and talking to our students," he said. "They have been the drive for me to do more—to do what I have believed has been the best for the school system. They have given me all my ideas."

"We are lucky being in a rural area. We have less problems than the children of inner-cities are experiencing, but those same problems are coming."

"Drugs, teen-pregnancy and AIDS are the problems our children will have to confront. Parents and communities must become more involved with the education process.

"At home, more time needs to be spent with the children, especially at the junior high level. We lose them between the ages of 12 and 15."

"My problems have dealt with space and facilities for the growth we have experienced. Economics will be the problem of the next decade."

"Hancock County is going to see better times economically within the next two to three years. The people must be assured their children benefit from those better days."

"I have had a most challenging life, and I have made the most of it. I intend to make the most of the years remaining and within those years continue to promote education."

Bourgeois adds organization to county school board meeting

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Even the agenda looked different. It was properly outlined with efficient little groups of similar actions.

Veteran Hancock County School Board members had a bit of difficulty adjusting to the new look last week, but like ducks re-entering water, they began the meeting and sailed through agenda items in record time.

New superintendent Myrna Bourgeois proposed the creation of committees for the re-evaluation of curriculum, staff development, strategic planning or issues management, public relations, community/board/staff networking and mentoring, and board policy updating.

She told the board she would like one board member to sit on each committee, to which they responded favorably.

Board president Frank Miller was re-elected, as was secretary Lenette Neaise, who was not present.

The board set school district meetings for the year on the first Monday of each month at 5 p.m.

In other business the board approved:

—the addition of the Hancock County Vo-Tech Center building to the district's current property insurance policy with Seal & Smith Insurance Co.

—payment of the $250 deductible for damages to the Driver's Education Car;

—payment of $2,520 to architects Thompkins, Hansen and Fields for work completed;

—superintendent's recommendation to re-hire her present central office staff;

—renewal of set compensation for board members ($40 per meeting/20 cents per mile);

—order to pursue liability damages for a fence knocked down at Gulfview Elementary School;

—renewal of bonds on district business manager, on all board members, and on all district principals;

—application for Federal Impact Aid for 1992;

—purchasing procedures; activity funds for all schools for September and October, 1991;

—and all 16th Section items.

ON PATROL

From Echo Staff Reports

BURGLARY OF A BUSINESS

Bay St. Louis Police Detective Tom Burleson reported two arrests on burglary charges.

Burleson said a call was received from Bay Pointe Apartments around 9:18 p.m. Sunday that a burglary was in progress in the complex's office.

About 4:02 p.m. Monday, officers arrested Fred W. Tyler, 23, no address available, and charged him with burglary of a business. He is being held without bond for the Mississippi Department of Corrections because of a probation violation, Burleson said.

On Tuesday, officers arrested Brian Fouca, 25, #7 Bay Pointe Apartments, and charged him with burglary of a business. He has been released on a $10,000 bond, reported Burleson, who was in charge of the investigation.

He added that a bank bag containing approximately $100 in cash was taken from a desk drawer and was not recovered. No further arrests are expected.

School holidays shorten meeting

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Christmas holidays led to a short agenda and brief meeting for the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board Monday.

Since the district, both schools and administration, was not in session during the holidays, the little business done at the meeting was routine.

The trustees unanimously approved each item. Those items included:

the December meetings minutes and claims docket; filing an amendment in the district's Chapter I budget; accepting a sole source supplier for Chapter I computer software; accepting depository bids for Easter, Merchants and Peoples banks; authorizing advertisement of the sale of a stripped surplus school bus; accepting a janitor's resignation; recommending the hiring of Lucinda Schussler as a speech/language pathologist for the remainder of the school year; requests for one leave of absence and two catastrophic leaves; and a student transfer into the district from the Hancock County district.

The board adjourned to February 10, 7 p.m.

Heart Attack

Coast Episcopal's ecumenical retreat mixes fun, fellowship and prayer for Coast youths

BY JANET MCQUEEN
Not a heart attack in the literal sense, but a look at the emotional and spiritual side of the heart...

Approximately 130 youths gathered over the weekend for Coast Episcopal Schools' fifth annual "Heart Attack," an interdenominational retreat for sixth, seventh and eighth graders. High school students volunteered as staff members and "models of the Christian life," said CEES principal Betsy Grant, who with Joanne Kinney, served as coordinator of the retreat.

The theme of the event was "Hugging God Back." "Since you can't hug God, we stressed to the kids to do what they can to 'hug' their neighbors, whether it be paying a compliment or doing a good deed. Be angels with each other," said Grant.

Each participant had a 'secret angel' for whom he made little gifts and prayed for. "We stressed, it doesn't have to be a big thing. People don't even know when you're praying for them, but prayer can be instrumental." Teen leaders were Coast Episcopal students Lin Montjoy, Blair Shellnut, Missy Mizell and Ashley Taylor, in addition to Jonathan Compretta of St. Stanislaus and Kristin Krogstad of Our Lady Academy.

"We have an incredible group of youths on the Coast who work so well together," said Grant. Some 40 high school age students from various schools helped with the retreat.

"It is all about demonstrating the Christian life...to walk the walk instead of talk the talk."

The Rev. Jon Caridad was spiritual director, and Kyle Bennett, originator of the program, was advisor. Bennett, who served as youth director of St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Diamondhead, designed the retreat to provide an environment for interaction among local teenagers.

"The kids really liked what he did," said Grant. "It was upbeat, and not too serious, but the message was there."

When Bennett became religious coordinator at Coast Episcopal Schools, CES took over the project. It is now the largest youth retreat of its kind in the area.

Heart Attack for high school students will be in early February at Coast Episcopal Elementary School. For additional information, contact Grant at 467-5125.

In photos by T. H. (Doc) Toups, clockwise from upper left, the St. Rose Youth Choir, under the direction of Alfriza Acker and Robert Weaver, sings gospel hymns; Richard Lawrence, youth director at Trinity Episcopal Church, shares an outdoor message with retreat participants; and youths join hands blindfolded to be led by high school counselors, learning to place trust in others.

Hancock High Improv group acts out issues

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
The room was vibrating with the excitement of young voices. A dozen or so Hancock High students gathered in the school library to discuss plans for the upcoming months. What moral dilemma shall they propose to their fellow students this time around?

"Improv" is the name of national program designed to involve students with students in the confrontation of life choices through situation acting.

The high school students are trained in some basic improvisational acting methods. Then, depending on the age group they are to address, a subject is selected and the group creates a situation in which a choice of action is demanded.

The intent of the pretend situation is to stimulate open discussion and hopefully greater insight into behavior choices.

The group draws the audience into the problem, forcing them to ask themselves, "What would I do?"

Once the ice is broken, ideas are exchanged freely, and surprisingly, both sides admit to learning a bit more about themselves and their world.

"You find out you are not the only one to think or feel a certain way," one of the Improv students explained. "It helps to reassure you that you are doing the right thing. It helps you to recognize pressures."

The students spoke of the various Improv sessions presented in the past year.

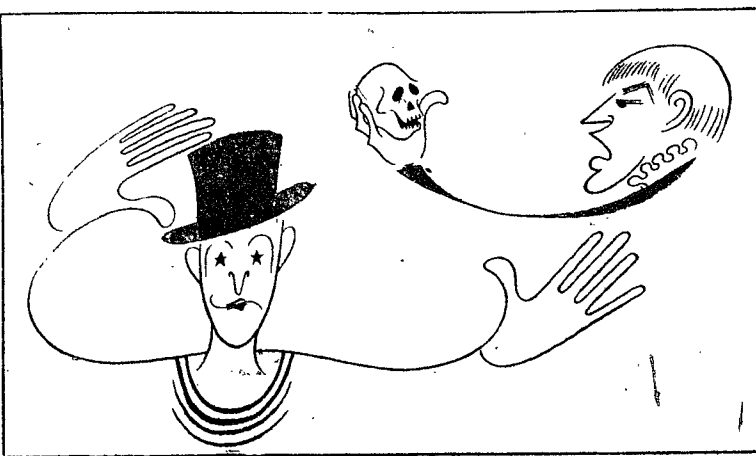

"We did a skit for a kindergarten class about one kid picking on another kid. We did one on appearing cool for some fourth-graders and one on drugs for a sixth-grade class. "Each age group faces different problems."

The students said, as the group acts out a situation, and the point of action is reached, all characters freeze.

The processor, or narrator, steps up and encourages the audience to ask questions of the characters.

In turn, each student-actor answers as the character they are representing, and then they are permitted to answer as themselves.

What to do and why, is discussed between the student-actors and the student-audience.

Interaction with the younger children has caused the actors to review their roles as older students.

"The little kids look at us like we know," said a female student. "We set an example for them. They look to us for the answer."

The students said it isn't as easy with the older children. They tend to question more. They do not always see their older peers as the bearers of truth and wisdom.

"At first they think we are big weirdos," explained an actor, "then little by little, they open up and join in."

The student-actors said with the older elementary students, the revealing of self is the most important thing. "They hear us saying, 'It's O.K. to be yourself,' and 'Yeah, that happened to me,' which lets them know they're not alone."

According to the student-actors, the Improv group gives them a medium by which they can relate understanding, communion and fortification through support.

A young woman said, "I am joining the group this year because I am impressed by how you guys are so open with each other."

"It wasn't always like that,"

CEHS homecoming

Court to be presented Saturday in basketball halftime ceremony

Special to the Echo
Coast Episcopal High School will celebrate homecoming for the 1991-92 school year on Saturday, Jan. 18 with two basketball games against Chamberlain-Hunt Academy of Port Gibson.

Girls' varsity play is scheduled at 1 p.m. followed by the varsity boys' game at the school gymnasium on Espy Avenue in Pass Christian.

Megan Uram
Junior maid

Members of the homecoming court will be presented at halftime of the varsity boys' game. The queen, elected by the students from the two senior class maids will be crowned by Coast Episcopal headmaster, the Reverend Jon Caridad.

Selected as freshman class maid is Jesmyn Anita Ward. The daughter of Mrs. Norine Ward of Pass Christian and Jerry Ward of New Orleans, "Mimi," as she is known to her friends, is a Raider cheerleader, treasurer of the freshman class, and secretary of SADD. She is a member of the French Club and the yearbook staff.

Sophomore maid is Kimberly Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Kelly of Gulfport. Kim is secretary of her class and a member of the National Honor Society. She is a member of SADD and the French Club.

Selected as junior maid is Megan McDonald Uram. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Uram of Bay St. Louis, Megan is a member of Mu Alpha Theta and the National Honor and has been on the staffs of Happening 25, 26 and 27.

Kimberly Kelly

She is a member of SADD, Quill and Scroll, and the Key Club. Ashley was Coast Episcopal School's Pepsi Student of the Month in October and is the recipient of the 1992-93 Daughters of the American Revolution Good Citizen Award. She is a Gayfer Girl and is listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Michelle Ann Morse is the daughter of George Morse of Gulfport and Betty Morse of Jackson. She is president of the National Honor Society and vice president of the Key Club. She is a member of SADD and

Ashley Taylor
Senior maid

Society. She is treasurer of the French Club and Student Council representative from her class. Megan was recently selected to represent Coast Episcopal School on the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Board. She is on the varsity basketball, tennis, and soccer teams. Last year Megan was chosen Athlete of the Year at Coast Episcopal.

Senior maids are Elizabeth Ashley Taylor and Michelle Ann Morse. Ashley is the daughter of Mrs. Ann Taylor and Joseph Taylor, both of Pass Christian. She is secretary of the Student Council, vice president of the French Club, business manager of the yearbook, on the Division of Youth Council of the Diocese of Mississippi

Mimi Ward
Freshman maid

Quill and Scroll and is listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Michelle was the 1991 recipient of the Bausch and Lomb Science Award, the Martha Guild Blue Ribbon Award, and the Sewanee Book of Excellence Award.

She was the 1991 Pepsi Student of the Year and was recently chosen Gulfport Exchange Club Youth of the Month for December.

Coast Episcopal chose to have a basketball season homecoming this year. The school has fielded an outstanding basketball team in recent years, last year setting a school record for wins at 29-14, capping 1990-91 play with participation in the Small High School National Tournament.

"This week's games will be important ones for us," said head coach Keith McQueen.

"With wins against Union Academy on Friday and Chamberlain-Hunt at Saturday's homecoming we will assure ourselves second place in the District. A win against Rankin Academy on the 24th will put us in a tie for first place."

During homecoming week, Coast Episcopal will sponsor various activities to promote school spirit such as class projects and theme days, including Hippy Day, Toga Day, and Hill-billy Day. The week will culminate on Friday with Spirit Day, with activities to include a special lunch and a pep rally. A homecoming dance will be Saturday night at the Pass Christian Yacht Club.

Improv

responded a veteran member of the group. "When you go through training you gradually build trust and you learn how to express yourself through games and exercises."

As the students continued to discuss what each has gained from their individual involvement with the group, the voice of self-conviction could be heard above all others.

"You have to believe in yourself."

"You can't worry about what anyone else says."

"Don't let them make you feel badly."

"You have to do what you feel is right."

Admittedly, the student-actors have worked little with their own age group. "We hope to do more skits this year with the senior high students," they added.

The youths said they expect addressing their own age group to be more challenging, since they share the same problems.

"It is easier to explain to a younger kid why this is right or wrong, because you have been through it. It's harder to talk about the right or wrong of something you aren't sure of yourself."

For more information call 255-2525, ext. Tennis World.

The USTA Adult Tennis League is beginning its 1992 organization.

The program is for all level players from beginner to advanced. Players do not have to be members of a club to play. League play will begin around March 1 with more than 400 players expected to participate.

For more information call Hap Davis, Mississippi Gulf Coast Coordinator, 769-9109.

An on-court observation and verification will be held at Bayou Bluff Tennis Club in Gulfport Saturday, Jan. 25, from 1 to 4 p.m. Call 896-9166 or 769-9109 to reserve verification time.

Players may organize a team or join an existing one. Locally, check with Tennis World at Diamondhead.

A final verification clinic will be held at Treasure Oaks in Ocean Springs February 22 from 1 to 4 p.m.

Fee is $5. For team captains, an organizational meeting will be at 10 a.m. January 25 at Bayou Bluff.

Bay St. Louis Little League officers will meet today at 7 p.m. at the Jaycee Hall on St. John Street. Coaches, parents and umpires are invited to attend.

The deadline for contributions to Time Out is Tuesday afternoon prior to publication. Items may be mailed to The Sea Coast Echo at P.O. Box 2009, Bay St. Louis, MS 39521. Short items may be submitted by phone at 467-5474.

Tigers upset Vancleave

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Bay High Tiger boys defeated Vancleave in both varsity and junior varsity play Tuesday.

Varsity Coach Mark Collins expressing his pleasure with the last minute 40-38 win, said, "Travis Collins hit a 15-foot jump shot with six seconds to win the game."

"This win snapped a four-game losing streak. It was a big conference win for the Bay High Tigers."

Leading scorers in varsity play were Trip Whavers with 18 points; James Ricks, Travis Collins, Russell Fairconnetue, Danny Jackson and Kevin Hodges, all adding four points each; and Tristian Robertson with two points.

Collins added that Brian Necaise contributed seven rebounds; Ricks, five rebounds; Robertson, four assists; and Collins, two steals.

Junior varsity play left the Tigers with a 50-43 win.

Leading scorers for the game were: Larrone Lewis with 15 points; Danny Jackson with 10 points; Gerald Watson and Adolfo Canelo, both with six points each; Tristian Robertson with five points; and Ricky Colles and Gus Necaise, both with four points each.

The Tiger varsity team will play again on Friday, Jan. 24 at Perry Central.

The Tiger varsity presently stands 7-10 overall; and 4-3 in conference.

Hawks fall to Yellow Jackets

The Hancock boys varsity team was defeated by the St. Martin Yellow Jackets Tuesday night, 72-55.

Isaac Thomas and Darin Acker each scored 16 points, including two 3-point goals for Thomas and one for Acker.

Other Hawks scoring were Tracy Lee, 12; Kelton Ladner, 9; and Jeremy Bennett, 2.

Lee and Thomas each had eight rebounds. Acker had three steals and four assists.

The Hawks are now 11-8 overall and 4-3 in division play.

EPA offers free maps depicting Gulf of Mexico shoreline changes

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Gulf of Mexico Program Office announced the availability of a 1991 map depicting historical shoreline change in the U.S. Gulf of Mexico.

The map is a product of the program's technical subcommittee on coastal and shoreline erosion.

This map represents the first time Gulf states and other federal agencies have worked together to develop a comprehensive map on coastal erosion in the Gulf of Mexico. The latest state of the art information and technology were used to create the map.

The map includes the average rate of shoreline change per year in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and parts of Florida. The map also indicates historical records of shoreline segments as a key to denote changes. Reference material is also included.

Major findings of the project revealed that Louisiana is the coastal erosion "hot spot" in the Gulf of Mexico followed by Texas, Mississippi, the Gulf shore of Florida and finally, Alabama.

Examples of erosion rates of major concern in the Gulf area located around Isles Dernieres and Timbalier Islands in Lafourche and Terrebonne Parish, La.

Projections indicate loss of these islands within the next 20 years if historical trends persist.

Additionally, forecasted loss of the barrier islands protecting the estuaries of the Mississippi River Delta will have a tremendous impact on the environmental quality of this coastal region.

Other coastal erosion "hot spots" in the Gulf include Sargents Beach, Texas; Belle Fourtain, Miss.; Dauphin Island, Ala.; and the Tampa Bay barrier islands.

The following agencies and organizations collaborated in producing the map:

U.S. Geological Survey
Louisiana Geological Survey
Texas Bureau of Economic
